

MANUFACTURING

Doerner represents many manufacturers both within and outside the state of Oklahoma. We are committed to providing aggressive, competent, cost-effective legal representation while working with manufacturing professionals and their in-house and national counsel. That includes assistance with such general business concerns as entity formation, governance, supply and sales contracts and tax planning. We can assist with all aspects of labor and employment law for manufacturers with and without third-party representation, and provide advice on occupational health and safety concerns that include OSHA compliance and response.

Our firm understands that Oklahoma manufacturers face increasing regulation from municipal, state, and federal governing bodies, whether involving environmental compliance or fair use policies. Our experience in dealing with the governing bodies responsible for these regulations, as well as our knowledge of many relevant legal fields, allow us to guide our clients through this regulatory landscape. We are especially skilled at providing pre-purchase advice and due diligence on environmental issues involve in property purchases for manufacturing. When necessary, we defend manufacturers in private litigation and government enforcement actions involving environmental matters.
